Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

WHAT is the greatest virtue in business? Patience, says William Feather. Writing in that jewel of all trade journals, the Imperial Type Metal magazine, this philosopher says:

Mencken Scoffed at Tender Passion; It Took Him at 45

Baltimore Sage Discovers Altar Rites No "Primitive Orgy"

SINCLAIR LEWIS 43

Although Embittered by Earlier Divorce, Novelist Regains Faith

This is the fourth of a series of six stories on "Love Begins at 40," telling of prominent personages who found romance long after the years of their youth had passed.

By WILLIS THOMPSON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

For many years Henry Louis Mencken was a professional pool-player, and there were few things he pool-poohed more vigorously than the tender passion.

The fall of Jericho, therefore, was like pushing over a row of dominoes compared to the crash heard round the world when H. L. Mencken blandly announced his forthcoming first marriage—at 45, the license read; nearer 50, other records indicated.

Here was the man who had averred that love is only a "perpetual state of anesthesia." "Too many persons marry." "Church weddings are primitive orgies in the worst of taste."

Those were Menckensisms on marriage, but chucklers roared vainly through the writings of America's No. 1 bachelor for assertions that he himself would never marry. There weren't any.

It Wasn't an Orgy

The pool-poohing had all been generalities; faced with the reality, Mencken himself found that love—at 45—wasn't so primitive an orgy as he had often written, for instance, that women under 30 were uninteresting.

Miss Sara P. Hardt, the bride, was 30. The marriage was held in the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Stephen the Martyr, and was really very quiet, in no way a primitive orgy. Mencken and Miss Hardt had been acquainted for ten years, and as editor he had accepted some of her first work for magazine publication.

Intuition, He Says

H. L. laughed off the interviewers as good-naturedly as any bridegroom ever did. They failed utterly to back him into a corner on any of his olden pool-poohings.

"How did I know that I was enough in love to contemplate and invite marriage? I can only say that it was intuition," Mencken smiled. "The Holy Spirit informed and inspired men."

"I have no objections to honey-moons, nor to wearing a plug hat," he said, getting a husband whose politeness has the high polish of a mirror. The best rule for marriage is the best rule for all relations: Be polite."

Then, in more serious vein, he added, "I have often thought that in an ideal state marriage should begin early. But it does not seem to work out in our civilization."

It doesn't, does it? Though the modern version would seem to be, marry early, often, and late.

Sinclair Lewis Weds Again

Sinclair Lewis, whose picture of young love in "Arrowsmith" is so infinitely touching, knows now that there is love also at a later age.

For he was 43 when he went to the registry office in London with Dorothy Thompson Baril, and she became.

Study the history of any successful business. Invariably the owners have been willing to wait. Dividends have been less interested to them than earnings. Earnings have been of less interest than soundness and growth. They have been willing to wait five or ten—even twenty years—for the realization of their desires.

The same type of patience is typical of proprietors of small businesses. Earnings are not money for self-indulgence. A fair share belongs to the business for its protection and expansion.

Yet there is another side of the story.

I was state editor of the Arkansas Gazette in 1925. Fred Heiskell, now dead, was managing editor. Mr. Heiskell and his brother, J. N., had acquired the Gazette with the aid of their father, a well-to-do Tennessee judge, in 1902—and by personal labor and patience had built up a great property.

But Fred Heiskell, a realist, told me this:

The copy-book tells you that early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise; but there is something, too, in good luck. Our father bought this paper for Ned and me 25 years ago. We prospered. How could we help prosper, with the state paper, in the largest city, of a growing state?

But 25 years ago many a farmer had his section of land and his tools and his livestock clear of debt. He's worked like the devil; he's been patient and thrifty—but today he is broke. How do you explain that?

X X X

Remember, this conversation took place nine years ago—four years before the Wall Street crash.

Men were thinking realistically about the problem of the land even then.

And I think that conversation goes a long way toward explaining why the public and the press of the South and West have steadily defended the administration in all of its land policies, however new and radical some of them might seem.

The more fortunate a man happens to be in his own business the greater the heartbreak as he looks out upon an economic order which has caused men to labor in vain and to practice patience without reward.

Roosevelt Insists Bill Specify Minimum 45% Margin Requirement

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Immediate passage of silver legislation was demanded unanimously Monday by the special senate silver committee.

Signs for Power Probe

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt Monday signed a bill authorizing funds to carry on the Federal Power Commission's investigation of electric rate charges.

Apologizes to Wirt

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—In a speech to the house Monday, Representative Bulwinkle, North Carolina Democrat, retracted and apologized for his previous statement that Dr. William A. Wirt, author of the "Brain Trust" revolution, had been confined to jail during the war because of pro-German activities.

Silver Sentiment Strong

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Explaining that he could not "see much objection" to the McLeod bill to pay off depositors in closed banks, Speaker Rainey prefaced to reporters Monday that if the legislation is brought to a house vote it will be approved in that branch of congress.

Earlier in his interview the speaker said that silver legislation is not included in the administration's program this session.

Rainey, however, issued a statement that the house was given a chance to vote on it.

"You can say the president is just as much for silver as I am," Rainey said, but he questioned the advisability of going ahead with any legislation now.

Rainey declared the president wants the stock market control bill to contain definite margin requirements. As the control bill stands in committee the house measure provides a 45 per cent margin, while the senate proposal leaves it entirely up to the Federal Reserve Board.

The administration is opposed to the McLeod bill to pay off depositors in closed national banks, and only Sunday night Secretary Morgenthau expressed the Treasury's opposition to a similar bill by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma.

May Adjourn in May

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked House Democratic leaders Sunday night to clear their program for the earliest possible adjournment date and informed them he would submit this week a general relief bill cutting for about $1,500,000,000.

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrnes of Tennessee, the floor leader, assured Mr. Roosevelt at the three-hour White House conference that the house would be ready to quit by the middle of May.

Rainey said the president was inclined to favor some kind of silver action, but there was no sign that any legislation of this kind was agreed upon Sunday night.

"We discussed all policies and general legislative plans," the speaker told reporters, "and did nothing in the way of decisions. The president wants us to get through as soon as possible. I think we can get away by the middle of May."

The $1,500,000,000 relief measure comes within the budget as submitted by the president at the opening of the session. At least $500,000,000 of this fund is to be earmarked for public works to stimulate employment. The bill will get another piece of this recovery fund.

It was said the McLeod bill providing for payments to depositors in closed banks was not discussed. The party leaders were uncertain what would happen in a vote on this measure.

Secretary Morgenthau joined the conference, which concluded two days of meetings by the president in organizing the legislative situation.

Wants Market Regulation

In addition, the conferees told reporters Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he wanted stock market regulatory legislation with more definite margin requirements than are contained in the Fletcher-Rayburn bill in its present form.

The house leaders said they gained the definite impression that the chief executive was willing to sacrifice an adjournment by the middle of

Bishop Offered to Hide 1928 Gift in Church Literary Fund

Cannon's Letter Proposing to Bury Campaign Check in Literary Fund of Methodist Church Revealed at Conspiracy Trial

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Evidence that Bishop Cannon offered to have a contribution concealed during the campaign against the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith was given Monday in the trial of the Southern churchman.

Earlier, Justice Peyton Gordon had overruled a defense objection to the mention of Bishop Cannon's prohibition views. The defense insisted that this might prejudice the jury. A letter purportedly written to William G. Gregg, of Hackensack, N. J., said if he wished to have a $500-contribution concealed "it can be utilized in the literary fund of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

Codes Will Issue New Blue Eagles

Only Businesses Meeting Trade Assessment Are Eligible

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt last week-end issued an order under which future display of the Blue Eagle will be allowed only to those firms which contribute to expenses of code administration, wherever such outlays are required.

To protect employers from racketeering by organizers of industrial groups, the president required that all code authority rates of assessments and budgets of expenditures must be approved by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson before a penny can be collected.

The executive order does not command that every firm under every code pay dues, but substantially leaves that government-controlled method of financing administration the only avenue which may be followed.

Industries, under the order, will not be required to, but will have the right to apply NRA for approval of a financing plan, which shall be put into effect if Johnson "shall find approval by him of such a clause is necessary."

Non-payment will constitute violation of the code, subject the firm involved to withdrawal of the eagle, deprivation of all suit for collection on the part of the Code Authority.

The president's order cleared the road for early distribution of the new "Code Eagle," the same Blue Eagle symbol shown in the past, but with a serial number and the name of the coded industry added to record affirmative compliance with the proper code by the firm displaying it.

The Code Eagle has been held up for months pending settlement of the question as to how proper financing of industrial self-government was to be obtained without invasion of the individual firm's constitutional rights.

CCC Gave Work to 600,000 First Year

Report to President Shows Camps Cost U. S. 255 Millions

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was told Sunday that $255,000,000 was spent in giving employment to 600,000 young men during the first year of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, reported to the chief executive that 310,000 would still be in the forest camps at the end of April. Funds have been appropriated to continue the program for another six months.

In addition to the enrolled men, 14,000 experienced foresters and technical experts have supervised the work and 3,600 reserve officers have commanded the camps.

Trotzky Flees in Fear of Assassin

Exiled Russian, Admitted to France, Suddenly Vanishes

BARBIZON, France.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky, fleeing an attack on his life by White Russians, fled Monday from his newly-uncovered hiding place in Barbizon.

Neighbors said the Communist leader, in exile from Soviet Russia, and his wife left their secluded villa at daybreak in a black automobile. Their new destination is unknown, and cure has been taken to see that goods purchased for the hospital are used for the benefit of the patients, and is not carried away.

"The actual expenditures for the last year were $90,427.79 less than the total expenditures of the previous year when the hospital was under the management of Dr. L. R. Brown, and in addition to this saving almost $4,000.00 was spent in renovating and properly equipping the center kitchen, which has resulted in better cooked and served food for patients. This is now a clean and modern kitchen and the cost of this work is not properly a part of the operating cost but was paid for out of operating revenue."

Capital Charge

"In addition to this sum, $2,450.00 was paid to an architect to plan and supervise the $100,000.00 worth of work on the war buildings of this institution by the CWA as this is not provided for by this agency of the government. This is another item that is not properly operating cost, and it and the kitchen work are in the nature of permanent improvements and represent a saving in operating cost."

J. K. Mahoney of El Dorado is chairman of the board, John L. Peters is secretary, with the following other board members: F. H. Fulkerson, H. Highfill, and Dr. Kolb.

When the officials entered, the erstwhile Soviet minister of war and head of the Supreme Economic Council was seated at a desk on which two revolvers lay. He admitted that the secrecy was prompted from fear of vengeance of White Russians. Trotzky in recent years has frequently but erroneously been reported the victim of assassination attacks.

Postal Furloughs to Be Abandoned

Normal Service Will Be Restored May 1 Instead of July 1

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Postmaster General Farley said Sunday increased postal revenue had made it possible to discontinue payless furloughs for postal employees after May 1 and restore normal delivery service.

"Improved business conditions throughout the country," he said, "have resulted in such a substantial increase in postal revenues during the months of February and March and offer such prospects of continued increases that I feel justified in revoking my previous order of March 21, providing for payless furloughs and curtailment of service during the remainder of the fiscal year, ending June 30."

"Not only will further payless furloughs be eliminated, but beginning May 1 there will be a restoration of service. Deliveries in residential districts of cities will be increased from two to three times a day; in business districts from three to four daily; and in mixed business and residential districts from two to three daily."

Longer hours for window service will be restored. Distribution crews in large postoffices will be increased and additional allowances for substitutes will be provided. The restoration of service will provide additional employment for substitutes.

Farley added that the increase in the volume of mail was regarded as an accurate barometer of improved business conditions throughout the country.

$96,000 Saving Is Reported in Year by State Hospital

SERVICE UNTOUCHED

Board Improves Plant and Stops Loss of Food and Supplies

Arkansas' State Hospital operated in the fiscal year 1933-34 at a saving of $96,793.06 under the cost of the preceding year, according to the annual statement of the hospital board to Governor Futral April 7, a copy of which was released this week-end to The Star by Dr. A. C. Kolb of Hope, board member.

The report shows that total expense this year is $486,480.85 against $576,917.64 for the preceding year.

Extravagance Ended

"This saving," the report continues, "has not been effected by reducing the amount of food, service or clothing given to the patients of this institution. This saving is due to the fact that waste and extravagance has been eliminated in all departments, and care has been taken to see that goods purchased for the hospital are used for the benefit of the patients, and is not carried away."

"The actual expenditures for the last year were $90,427.79 less than the total expenditures of the previous year when the hospital was under the management of Dr. L. R. Brown, and in addition to this saving almost $4,000.00 was spent in renovating and properly equipping the center kitchen, which has resulted in better cooked and served food for patients. Great Artist of Commercial Appeal Succumbs at 49

Alley was the author of "Hambone's Meditations," a daily syndicated cartoon feature appearing in many newspapers. He also drew a daily three-column cartoon for page one in the Commercial Appeal which was reproduced widely in the Literary Digest and other national weeklies for nearly 20 years.

Alley was born near Benton, Ark. The late C. F. J. Mooney, editor and publisher of the Commercial Appeal with whom Alley worked for many years, also was an Arkansas, born near Pine Bluff.

Arkansas Leads in Newspaper Survey

Proprietary Medicine Survey Declared Most Valuable in U. S. in 1933

Arkansas Dailies' survey of proprietary medicines in this state in 1933 was declared the most valuable newspaper survey of any trade activity in the United States last year, by Editor & Publisher, newspaper trade journal.

Participating in the survey was Hope Star, which is among 20 Arkansas daily newspapers represented in the national or factory advertising field by Arkansas Dailies, Inc., with home offices at Memphis.

W. V. Witmer, manager of the publishers' agency, said:

"It is especially gratifying that newspapers as small as ours have received this recognition when, in past years, the award has gone to metropolitan newspapers only, such as the New York Herald-Tribune which won it in 1933, and the Milwaukee Journal in 1932."

Fresh Attack on New Deal Is Seen

McAdoo, Hearst and Jim Reed Reported in Alliance

WASHINGTON.—A triple alliance, composed of Senator William G. McAdoo of California, Publisher William Randolph Hearst and the brilliant, hit-or-miss Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, is the spearhead of the more or less undercover assault on President Roosevelt's recovery program which the chief executive discovered when he returned to the White House according to the Chicago Tribune News Service.

It was McAdoo, whose agile fox-trotting and rumba dancing gave the lie to his 70 years, who wielded the snickersnee which, in the secrecy of executive sessions of the Senate Banking Committee, amputated the most vigorous sections of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill to control securities trading. The measure is dear to Mr. Roosevelt, and the issues will come to a showdown fight on the floor of the senate—a spot where McAdoo, who, with Hearst, put Garner across as vice presidential candidate against the wishes of Roosevelt—is loath to go into action.

Many surprising political aspects have taken place since the advent of the New Deal, but none was more surprising to the administration than that of last week when Reed—courageous, "saw-toothed" raven of the Waw—plunged on to the capital scene to defend that ludicrous and glibly Red baiter from Gary, Ind., Dr. William A. Wirt, ponderous and not overbright mouthpiece of the group which is working 24 hours a day to emasculate the Fletcher-Rayburn bill.

Prescott and Hope Police Halt Pair Sought in Robbery

H. O. Hutson, Prescott Brought to Hope Hospital Dying

FIGHT ON VIADUCT

Otis Bean, Believed Wounded, Escapes to Nearby Field

Henry O. Hutson, 50, of Prescott, was believed dying Monday afternoon in Julia Chester hospital as Hempstead and Nevada county officers pressed a search for Otis Bean, a companion of Hutson who escaped in a hail of gun fire at the Missouri Pacific viaduct one mile northeast of Hope on Highway 67.

Hutson was shot once, the bullet entering his back and emerging through the abdomen. Physicians said his condition was very critical and they held little hope for his recovery. Bean was believed by officers to be wounded as he fled across a field.

The last seen of him was in a wooded area near the L. C. Somerville home at 215 Monday afternoon. Sheriff Pittman of Nevada county, said he believed Bean was armed.

Wanted for Robbery

The fugitives wanted for a series of filling station hold ups and store robberies in Nevada and Clark counties, left Prescott early Monday afoot. They were trailed by Sheriff Pittman, Officer John Pruitt, Deputy Sheriffs Earl May and Horace Hale, all of Nevada county.

Hempstead county officers, headed by Chief of Police Clarence Baker, met the Prescott officers at the bridge. Bean and Hutson were seen walking south on the railway tracks toward where they approached the bridge. Sheriff Pittman ordered them to halt.

The two wheeled and fled. Police guns in the hands of Baker and Pittman brought down Hutson after he had taken a few steps. Bean, apparently wounded, staggered across a field into a wooded section.

A Hope Furniture company ambulance brought Hutson to the hospital. He was not armed.

Sheriff Pittman related that Bean and Hutson have been sought for weeks on robbery charges in this section.

Bean Brother Jailed

Clarence Bean, a brother of Otis, was captured last Wednesday afternoon when Nevada and Clark county officers raided a hide-out four miles east of Bienville, Clark county. Clarence is now held in jail at Prescott on robbery charges. At the time of the raid Otis Bean and Hutson escaped.

Otis Bean was arrested last year at Texarkana on robbery charges. He made bond, but jumped it, Sheriff Pittman said.

Captured later, he was placed in jail at Prescott where he fashioned a key from a tobacco can, freeing a half dozen prisoners in a jail break.

At that time June Brashear, wanted for a bank robbery at Hope, was set free. Brashear, a few days later, was captured by Sheriff Pittman

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Zeal for Ocean Mail Quiz Fades:
Roosevelt Friends Involved . . . See PWA Peak in Autumn . . . War Futurity Cause of Striking Gesture . . .
New Deal Losing Teeth.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—The air mail mess has dampened the enthusiasm here
for cancellation of ocean mail contracts.

Senator Hugo L. Black will soon resume his investigation into ocean
mail, but the resumption is overdue.
One reason for delay is believed to be that Vincent Astor, a power in the International Mercantile Marine and a probable witness, is busy entertaining
President Roosevelt on his yacht down south.

Black has favored cancellation of ocean mail contracts. Evidence indicates more collusion in their negotiations than was proved in the case of airmail.

But it's doubtful whether the administration will act as boldly against steamship companies as it did against aviation concerns.

Forty-one ocean mail contracts involve payments of $385,000,000 over a 10-year period. About $140,000,000 has been paid, as compared with only $85-000,000 to air lines.

Sensational disclosures as to financing and deals for Shipping Board vessels are expected.

When two groups began bidding for the United States Lines in 1931, it is charged, their respective friends in or near the Hoover administration got them together on a joint bid which brought them the Leviathan and other big liners for $3,000,000, to be paid at less than 1 per cent interest over a 12-year period.

One group included President P. A.
S. Franklin of International Mercantile Marine, Kermit Roosevelt of Roosevelt Steamship Co., and Vincent
Astor; the other, R. Stanley Dollar,
Herbert Fleischacker, and Kenneth D.
Dawson, Pacific Steamship magnates.
The operating concern for U. S. Lines is now the Roosevelt Steamship Co.
Kermit Roosevelt and Astor are intimate friends of the president.

PWA Peak in Autumn Insiders now believe the peak of federal public work construction will be reached in September—not in June or July, as commonly predicted.

Less than $400,000,000 of PWA's $3-300,000,000 has been paid out, though the budget estimate called for $1,077-000,000 by July.

Realists in closest touch with the National Emergency Council's plans for a big housing drive think the measure of the effort's success may depend on the amount of PWA money allocated to it.

Some PWA funds are assured, but most of the money is to come from local lending agencies.

A Stirring Gesture
Twenty-one members of the Canadian Legion at Stratford, Ont., stood before the British Empire flag and a picture of King George to give up their Victory war medals to the Stratford post might send them to finance ministers of 21 nations which took part in the World War.

The medals were sent with a message which said: "Today nationalism, flourishes, greed is rampant, armaments menace our homes, and war impends. The fruits of our victory have vanished . . . the Victory medals, now empty emblems of defeat, we surrender, one to each combatant nation, to be melted down in metal and swallowed with all other rewards of armed conflict in payment of the war
costs of the world."

One medal came to the Treasury here. Secretary Morgenthau returned it, appreciating "the high-minded purpose," but declaring himself without authority to use the medal in the manner suggested.

New Deal Losing Teeth
The New Deal has lost plenty of steam, if you can believe what certain administration henchmen in Congress are telling their colleagues.

They spread word that Roosevelt is willing to let Congress go home after it passes the tariff, taxation, and stock market bills. And that he won't insist on the Wagner unemployment insurance bill, the Wagner labor board bill, or the modified pure food and drug bill.

This report takes the heart out of New Dealers interested in the social phases of the Roosevelt program.

Along about this time of year, vitality is at a low ebb and a girl's reflection in the mirror isn't apt to please her. Her complexion seems to be grayish, tired lines appear around mouth and eyes, her neck is stiff when she wakes up in the morning.

Something must be done, of course.
No one wants to go on feeling out of parts and looking tired and wan. A vacation probably is the most effective way of getting rid of "spring fever." If you possibly can, take a trip somewhere and get away from the typewriter, sewing machine, children or what have you. You'll be surprised at what one short week can do for your disposition and your looks as well.

However, if you're one of the countless millions who never can seem to take a vacation, substitute exercise,
the right food and some home beauty treatments for a holiday in the country or on a boat. They're inexpensive substitutes and really quite pleasant.
First, make sure that you're drinking ten glasses of water each day.

PABLITO, a handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when he flees
from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves.
Pablito has been accused of a murder he did not commit. MAR-CIA TREADWAY who could prove him innocent fears scandal and remains silent.

Pablito is in love with ES-TELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, in Havana, under the name "Juanito," he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablito's father, begins
a search for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.
BILLINGS, convinced Pablito is Sir Aubrey's son and innocent of the charge against him, sets to work to prove this.

Three years pass and Pablito sees Estelle again. They meet secretly until her father takes her away on a yacht cruise. Pablito, believing Estelle faithless, leaves Cuba. Months later, in France, he reads of her engagement to ALEC DAVIDS. He decides to return to Cuba.

Pablito loses his fortune in a financial crash. He and Estelle, too, decide to go to Havana.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

JIM FIELD went on, speaking slowly. "I've been feeling the cold here and I thought a few weeks in Havana might pick me up."

What he was thinking was, "At least I have the Havana house. I can sell it and with Estelle's income—" His vague reverie pictured the two of them managing on a reduced income, trying to shave expenses. The big place in Havana would be too large for them to keep anyhow. It had always taken a horde of servants to run it. Now they would have to get along with only a cook and second maid. There would be no others—no maid for Estelle or vallet for himself.

He gave Estelle's hand—grown limp in his clasp—a hard squeeze
and again moved toward the table.
She watched him down another stiff drink with a splutter and gulp. Something was wrong, she knew. One of the few times Jim Field had never acquired was over-drinking. Of course, she concluded wearily, with a blunt, matter-of-fact frankness that contrasted unpleasantly with her earlier moment of sympathy, it must be some woman. He had usually had his way with women but in a long lifetime of pursuit there was sure to be one desired one who would evade, perhaps with a cruel and mocking laugh.

"I hope Havana will make you feel much better," she said gently.
Field thought of Estelle as she had been a few years earlier. She had always spoken gently then. Again his eyes stung.

"Well," he answered, "we'll have a try at it."

His attempt at banter was not convincing. She bit herself tawling and fought against this.
She did not want to feel again the old pain that always followed whenever she gave way to real feeling, hoping or caring—all those pitiable, beautiful and fragile emotions that go with youth.

A soft-footed servant announced
dinner from the broad doorway.
Jim Field got to his feet and, passing the servant, saw in the man's eyes that he had seen the evening's newspapers and was wondering about his wages.

PABLITO was glad to find Lottie
and Beau where he had left them. And with Lottie's arms clinging about his neck and her tear-wet face raised to his he felt a faint glow of warmth. Lottie had always cared and he was grateful. No one else had always cared.
"Oh, my God, it's good to see you, Pablito!" she whispered unsteadily. "We thought sometimes you was never coming back! Where was you, any way?"

She didn't wait for him to answer. "Beau and me have kept the place going," she went on quickly.
"It ain't so popular as it was but if you'll start fighting again—"

"I'm not going to."
"Say, you don't need to! Beau and me cleaned up good on a strip of land we bought. And you have enough anyhow. Say, Pablito, you haven't been sick, have you? You're not lookin' so terrible good."

"I never was 'so terrible good', Lottie."

"Oh, Lord—grammar again! Just seem' you makes me excited and here you start in on that grammar.
I meant you ain't lookin' any too well, but well fix you up! You ain't married?" she ended with a gulp that told of her fright.

"Heavens, no! Do I look it?"
"I didn't know. Beau's married."
The girl was a dirty, sneaky little devil and he hadn't the notion of marryin' her—but she managed that. "You oughta hear her bawlin' him out—but then you will! When she gets started you could hear her to Key West on a clear day.
Honey—"

"I got your room. I moved outa mine so they—Beau and her—could have the other side of the house. I didn't want to hear 'em fightin' all the time! But I'll move to the next one if you'd rather I wasn't around—in your room—"

He would ride through the smart Vedoka where trinity dressed nurse maids may be seen accompanying clandestinely clothed little children;
on out to Cerra where life is lived almost entirely in the open; and then on to the Vedoka where lived his mother, his mother whom he had never seen.

He would order the driver to go slowly along the Calle San Anastasia and at a certain door he would look long. For a moment Pablito's bitterness came back to him. Then again the wonder of the picture-que land swept over him. Cuba was home to him; it was gorgeous and wonderful.

A moment more and this mood
died away to know as reviving.
Pablito had dreamed so often of sharing the beauties of Havana
with Estelle—who had lived it, too.
Pablito!

She shook her head, set her teeth on her lower lip and her eyes blushed. "I never will,"
she assured him in a high, childlike voice that trembled a little. "I even took to sayin' my prayers that you'd come back. I never done that before. Well, it worked.
I'm your doormat with 'Welcome'
wrote a foot high. Say, if you knew how I felt you'd play the blind. I ain't got but one thought of heaven and that's you. Oh,
Pablito!"

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In the great surgical clinics today,
you will see great batteries of steam sterilizers that destroy germs on bandages, linens, and instruments.

Instead of depending on just one anesthetic, the modern surgeon has a choice of ether, nitrous oxide-oxygen, ethylene, and other anesthetic mixtures of gases.

New types of machines have developed which arrange and mix the material accurately and supply them to the surgical patient safely and regularly.

There are especially-built X-ray machines for use in the operating room.

In the performance of the surgical operation, machines now are available which cut and seal the tissues of Studying the X-ray negative of a child's elbow.

the body by use of an electric knife.
There are electrically driven saws, and machines which make clips take the place of silk for stitching the skin.

In the physical therapeutic departments of the hospital, more machines come to light. There are devices which provide ultra-violet rays. Other apparatus applies heat to the body, by use of electric light, by burning of carbons with reflectors, and by passing electric current through the tissues.

Many hours would be required even to list devices used in the diagnosis and treatment of disease today. Their names are complicated and their uses highly technical.

The sphygmograph, the polygraph,
the plethysmograph, and the electrocardiograph are devices which provide records on a visible scale of changes in the pressure, the pulse, and the motions of various tissues and fluids.

There are automatic devices used for giving blood transfusions. Machines are used for injecting air into the lungs so as to produce collapse of the lung, or artificial pneumothorax, and thus rest the lung in tuberculosis.

There are devices for pulling the arms and the legs, thus holding the fragments of bone in place in treatment of fractures and dislocations.

All great discoveries in mechanics,
an physics, in chemistry, in engineering, and in other sciences are being applied to save human life. Use of these machines has added somewhat to cost of medical care, but it has made the treatment of disease more certain, more safe, and more scientific.

Physicians are developing means of using such machines jointly in treating sick and in groups of offices, to make their use less costly to the individual patient. However, no machine is any more valuable than the brains of the man behind it. No machine can make a diagnosis or remove a brain tumor or an appendix.

The doctor who interprets the electrocardiographic tracing or the X-ray picture, the surgeon who manipulates the electrical saw, or the chemical knife, he, and not the machine, is the vital element in your medical care.

Man—How far have you and your wife got with your plan to buy a new car?

A Package of Seed

We paid a dime for a package of seeds. And the clerk tossed it out with a flip.

"We've got 'em assorted for every man's needs," he said, with a smile on his lip. Pansies and poppies and asters and peons—

Ten cents a package. And pick as you please!"

Now seeds are just dimes to the man in the store.

And dimes are the things that he needs.

And we've been to buy them in seasons before.

But have thought of them merely as seeds.

But it flashed through our mind as we took them this time.

"You have purchased a miracle here for a dime!"

"You've a dime's worth of power which no man can create.

You've a dime's worth of life in your hand!

You've a dime's worth of mystery, destiny, fate.

Which the wisest cannot understand.

In this bright little package, now isn't it odd?

You've a dime's worth of something known only to God!"

These are seeds, but the plants and the blossoms are here

The B. & P. W. club will hold a business meeting at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening at the city hall. All members are urged to be present.

The Friday Music Club held their regular meeting on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. Y. Foster, Jr., on North Main street. After an hour's practice by the Choral club, the Study club was called to order by the president, Mrs. C. C. McNeill. Roll call responses were quotations from Shakespeare, in keeping with the study subject for the afternoon, "The Homeland of Shakespeare." Following the reading of the minutes and the secretary's report, the final report from the chairman of the general committee in regard to the Choral director was given, in which Mrs. J. C. Carlton was unanimously chosen for the place. Mrs. Carlton in her acceptance, urged the cooperation of all choral members in making this the very best year in the history of the club. Mrs. John Welborn, state chairman of public school music, reported a communication from Ross Graham of Hot Springs, who is touring the state and giving artists programs, stating that it would be possible to include this city in his tour and the club voted to sponsor this program. The color combination of pink and white, and the motto, "Let All My Life Be Music," same also to be used as club song was adopted by the club. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. C. C. McNeill; first vice president, Mrs. E. S. Richards; recording secretary, Mrs. R. M. Long; treasurer, Mrs. George Ware; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John P. Cox; librarian, Mrs. S. G. Norton; parliamentarian, Mrs. R. T. White; choral director, Mrs. J. C. Carlton; pianist, Mrs. Edwin Stewart. New members received into the club: Mrs. E. C. Luke, Miss Mary Louise Keith, Mrs. Wilbur Jones and Mrs. Chas. Locke. The meeting at this time was turned over to the guide for the Shakespeare tour, Mrs. John Welborn, who presented the following interesting program. Miss Helen McRae, whose violin numbers are always so beautiful and well rendered gave the first number, "Who is Sylvia," accompanied by Miss Harriett Story; a piano selection, "Hark, Hark the Lark," was played by Mrs. Honea. A vocal duet, "It Was a Lover and His Lass," by Mrs. R. T. White and Mrs. W. Y. Foster, Jr. The piano duet "Midsummer Night's Dream," was given by Mrs. C. C. McNeill and Mrs. E. S. Richards. The program closed with a beautiful vocal trio, "Under the Greenwood Tree" sung by Mrs. George Ware, Mrs. J. C. Carlton and Mrs. John P. Cox. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. C. Kolb.

Both were presumed to be disguised accounts of how the first marriage of Lewis collapsed under the impact of social contacts during a European trip. Lewis himself, a little later, at a time when he was having alimony trouble with his former wife, wrote a plea for "more decent" divorce, pointing out that "when a married couple is already discovered in fact, when all love and respect between the two are gone, so that they are like two enemies chained together in a common dungeon, then it is but common decency to separate them completely and forever."

So They Go Homeymooning
But all this bitterness could not prevent the Nobel prize winner, one of the latest analysts of human emotions writing today, from falling in love again at 43.

Asked when he became engaged to Miss Thompson, who is a journalist of stature in her own right, Lewis was quoted as saying, "Oh, I should say about 20 minutes after meeting in the Reichstag in Berlin!"

So they departed for a honeymoon tour through Scotland and England with a motor camping outfit, and the marriage has thus far been a great success, both being much engrossed in the upbringing of a son.

Weds at 76, Father at 77
Nina Wilcox Plutium is another author who found that at 43 she was still in a mood to contract a third marriage. Where as Dr. Richard T. Ely, New York, writer and president of the Institute for Economic Research, not only married at 76, but became the father of a boy a year later, also achieving a daughter only a few weeks ago in his 80th year.

The younger generation may scoff and put their elders on the shelf at 40. But they won't stay there! Proof is plentiful enough that love only begins at 40!

One more chapter in the bitter history of Bishop Cannon.

In District of Columbia court today, where the bishop is on trial for fraudulently concealing a Republican campaign donation to the Anti-Smith organization of 1928, there is introduced a letter in which the bishop offered to hide a $500 gift by a New Jersey "in the literary fund of the Methodist church."

We heard a good deal in 1928 about the threatened union of church and state if a Catholic were elected president.

But Bishop Cannon stands before us as visible proof that the Catholic "It" became a Protestant fact.

LAXATIVE
for Busy People

Just as autos have replaced horses, science has developed and proven a new, more thorough and prompt-acting laxative called Peena-mint. Peena-mint is the delicious chewing gum laxative. It contains a laxative ingredient regularly prescribed by physicians. Peena-mint is better than old-fashioned laxatives, because chewing distributes the laxative uniformly into the system, thus insuring a "full" action without shock or irritation to even the delicate digestive organs of children. The prompt, gentle but complete action of Peena-mint does not interfere with usual duties. Had your system of constipation's headache and sluggishness. "Delay" is dangerous—chew Peena-mint for constipation. 15c and 25c at druggists everywhere.

Shreveport Girl Slain, Mutilated

Middle-Aged Man Sought After His Employee Disappears

SHREVEPORT, La.—(AP)—A murder which tortured the 18-year-old victim before her death and abused the body afterward, was the object of a search in North Louisiana Sunday after discovery of the body of Mac Griffin in a thickly wooded area on the western outskirts of Shreveport, near Cross Lake, the city's water supply.

Two negroes wandering in the woods found the girl's body covered with leaves and rotted wood, which the slayer apparently had attempted to set aside.

Officers had a detailed description of the man with whom the girl left some last Thursday morning. He had been married soon, as a maid, but the address he gave as his home proved fictitious when the girl's mother, Mrs. L. P. Peters, became alarmed a few minutes after she allowed the girl to leave with the 50-year-old man. Police were notified, but they found no trace of the girl or man.

The girl's throat had been slashed four times, a deep slash inflicted in her liver and there were many minor cuts, apparently made by a sharp instrument, according to Dr. W. P. Butler, Corde parish coroner.

Miss Griffin was preparing to be married soon to Lee Looney, of Board Camp, Ark., her mother said.

Bolivia Claims Bloody Victory Against Paraguay

LA PAZ, Bolivia.—(AP)—A major engagement in the Chaco war zone was revealed Sunday night by the Bolivian War Office, which said the combat was still raging and that more than 1,200 Paraguayans had been killed and wounded.

The War Office said a wing movement of its outposts in the Conchita-Pilemoyo sector may have turned tide of battle. This announcement was followed by a report from the Bolivian office on the Chaco front which said the Paraguayans had been led into a snare by the Bolivian wing movement.

The report said that after seven bloody clashes "assaults on our lines were turned back at a cost of approximately 800 casualties to the enemy."

Both the high command of the army here and the office behind the Bolivian lines said that "our losses were insignificant."

I. & R's Value Is Hurt by Decision

Justice Smith Plays Majority Opinion on Ballot Title Case

LITTLE ROCK.—The value of Arkansas' initiative and referendum amendment was destroyed by the ruling of the Arkansas Supreme Court Monday, April 9, that the ballot title to petitions to refer Act 78 of 1933 to the people is "misleading, colored and partisan."

Associate Justice Frank G. Smith said in a dissenting opinion filed with the Supreme Court clerk this week-end.

Chief Justice Johnson said in the majority opinion, that after discussion the ballot title in detail, that it appears that each sentence and phrase of the proposed title is either misleading, colored or partisan.

Judge Smith took up each phrase separately and quoted from statutes involved to show that each phrase stated a literal truth, which, he said, could not properly be construed as misleading.

"If only those ballot titles may be approved which are above or immune from criticism, the amendment has lost its value in both initiative and referendum features," Judge Smith said.

"It is beyond contemplation or comprehension that the ballot title should advise the voter fully what the exact state of the law will be if the majority vote is cast for the legislation, which is called 'the measure' in the amendment. If such a test is to be applied, it would be equally important to advise the elector what the state of the law will be if the majority vote is not cast for the proposed measure."

Roosevelt Holds Ace in New Deal

National Recovery Gives Him Trading Advantage Over Congress

WASHINGTON.—The nation still struggles ahead, forging on to better times, with more people going back to work every week now, stores in city and country selling more goods, shiny new automobiles crowding the highways.

There are smiles on many faces which a year ago were gloom cast, more buoyancy and optimism is abroad, and this gladness and hope is much more than a phenomenon produced by the warmth of spring.

It is this advancement, this movement ahead, which imparts to President Roosevelt the independence of spirit—in a man of lesser exalted position it would be called "cockiness"—which he has manifested so clearly since his return from his vacation at sea.

Thus it was that the president on Saturday greeted the Democratic leaders of the senate, and thus was it Sunday night when he gathered round him in the oval study at the White House his party's leaders in the house.

He made them believe that he still thinks himself in command of the situation, and that he is quite overlooking their recent refusals to follow his leadership in the veterans' compensation and employees' pay bill, and in other legislative matters.

Woodmen Circle to Meet Tuesday Night

Denies Actress 'Caveman' Story

Poplar Grove 196, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, will meet in regular session in the Woodmen Hall, Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. At this meeting the charter of the local lodge will be draped in memory of Danny Dowling, screen dancer, above, threatened her with a gun and tried to force her to marry him, holding her prisoner in a Yuma, Ariz., hotel, Marjorie Crawford, film actress, charged. Los Angeles authorities filed accusation of assault with a deadly weapon against Dowling, who denies coercion.

Mrs. Mary E. LaRocca, late national president of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, whose death occurred at Omaha, Neb., last week. It is expected that a large number of members of the local lodge will be in attendance.

Youth—Molly says she's wildly in love with her new car. His Pal—Yeah. Another case where man is displaced by machinery.
